SOCIETY GIRL WEDS PROMINENT ATTORNEY

Marriage of Miss Alice Roth and Frank E. Thompson Marks Week—Dinners, Teas and Receptions On Social Calendar.

A WEDDING of social note occurred Tuesday evening, at the new Episcopal Methodist Church, when Mr. Frank E. Thompson, one of the most prominent and eminent attorneys of Honolulu was united in marriage to Miss Alice Roth, who is one of the most popular girls in society. Miss Roth has a personal charm that has endeared her to her numerous friends. She is enthusiastic and unaffected with a rare grace of manner to add to her attractiveness. The wedding Tuesday was a quite one, only the relatives and Mr. Thompson's law partners and their wives witnessed the impressive and beautiful ceremony. The interior of the church was elaborately decorated with white orchids, lilies and potted palms. The decorations were elaborate and were among the most beautiful ever designed in Honolulu. At half after eight o'clock to the melody of Lohengrin wedding march, the bride party appeared. The ushers Mr. Charles Stanton and Dr. Arthur Hodgins, preceded the bride's party down the aisle. The bride's only attendant was Miss Margaret Waterhouse, who looked extremely pretty in a light green satin with an overdress of coral colored marquisette, a heavy gold cord was cleverly introduced in the French model. A floral muff of roses and maiden hair fern was carried. Closely following her maid of honor, the young bride appeared, leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. Henry P. Roth who gave her into the keeping of her future husband. There has never been a more exquisite bride, for Miss Roth looked radiantly beautiful. The bride robe of white crepe meteor was one of the most effective worn this season and was elaborated with quantities of real lace. The costume was completed with a tulle veil, held in place by orange blossoms. A handsome diamond necklace that was the gift of the groom's, were the only jewels worn. A shower bouquet of brides roses was carried which added to the exquisite beauty of the toilette. At the altar, Mr. Frank E. Thompson and Mr. Otis Sorenson, the latter serving in the office of best man, met the bride party, and the short, impressive wedding service was performed by the Rev. Wadman, that united the young couple as man and wife. Directly after the ceremony the bride and groom, their attendants and the few friends that had witnessed the nuptials, moved to the suburban home of Mrs. Margaret Roth, where a delicious wedding supper was served. This beautiful home by the sea, was decorated throughout, with American Beauty roses and smilax, and potted palms. A Hawaiian Quartet club, played and sang during the evening, the musicians were stationed on the veranda, behind a tropical screen of palms. Due to the young couple's popularity they were the recipient of numerous costly gifts. After their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Thompson will be at home to their numerous friends, at the Alexander Young Hotel, where they will reside. The following announcement has been received:

Mrs. Shepherd's and Mrs. Hobdy's Bridge Tea.

Mrs. Shepherd's and Mrs. Hobdy's bridge tea, Wednesday afternoon, was one of the week's charming hospitalities. Some of the invited guests had previous engagements, thus barring them from participating in the game, but a number of them "dropped in" for the 5 o'clock buffet tea. The card tables were arranged in the library, drawing room and reception hall. Each room was effectively decorated, but in different colors. The library was done entirely in scarlet. Bronze bowls were filled with scarlet bigonia, tall brass vases containing red cannae were artistically placed around the room. The drawing room was decorated in white and lavender waters, yellow corymbia ornamented the reception hall. Perhaps the most beautiful room was the hall, which was ornamented entirely in pink roses and bigonia of the same shade. In this latter room the buffet tea was served. After the bridge tournament the prizes of white gauze and real lace spangled fans were awarded, and were greatly admired by the guests. The prize winners were Mrs. Lackland, Mrs. Thomas Wall, Mrs. Lorrin Thurston, Mrs. Arthur Wall, Mrs. Andrew Fuller, Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. Blackman. Among those who enjoyed this delightful affair were Mrs. Shepherd, Mrs. Hobdy, Mrs. Warner, Mrs. Joseph Gilman, Mrs. Andrew Fuller, Mrs. Kelley, Mrs. Harry Wilder, Mrs. Sutton, Miss Marjorie Peterson, Miss Jessie Kennedy, Mrs. Montgomery Macomb, Mrs. Walter Cowles, Mrs. Clifton Carter, Mrs. Frank B. Edwards, Mrs. Chapman, Mrs. M. F. Prosser, Mrs. C. G. Hallentine, Mrs. Thomas Wall, Mrs. Clifford Kimball, Mrs. James Dougherty, Mrs. E. E. Paxton, Mrs. H. E. Cooper, Mrs. Lackland, Mrs. Jamison Madison Kennedy, Mrs. Arthur Marx, Mrs. E. Timberlake, Mrs. Hocking, Mrs. Charles B. Wood, Mrs. James Judd, Miss Swinnell of San Francisco, Mrs. Arthur Wall, Mrs. William Love, Mrs. L. Tenney Peck, Mrs. William Whitney, Mrs. J. H. Raymond, Mrs. Lorrin Thurston, Mrs. Blackman, and others.

Mrs. Alpa Baldwin's Luncheon. Thursday afternoon Mrs. Alpa Baldwin was hostess at an elaborate bridge luncheon that was given in honor of Miss Onie Kennedy, who is the house guest of Major and Mrs. James Madison Kennedy of Fort Shafter. Colonial damies and gentlemen of the George Washington period ornamented the place cards. Cut glass vases in graduated sizes, filled with golden shower, were artistically placed on the beautifully arranged table, with accessories of rare china, priceless silver and sparkling crystal. Directly over the center of the table was a floral lattice, the background being of smilax. Clusters of the golden shower were suspended—this was so cleverly arranged that the general effect was of an arbor with this exquisite tropical flower growing in its profusion and natural state. The floral adjustment was not only beautiful but unique. On the north side of the dining room was a grotto filled with countless varieties of maidenhair fern and orchids that gave another tropical touch to the surroundings. The luncheon was given at the Hotel Colonial, which is becoming more and more popular for society functions. After partaking of the delicious repast the guests and their charming hostess adjourned to the mauka lanai, where small tables had been arranged for cards. With the exception of four of the guests the assembly devoted the remainder of the day to bridge. Handsome prizes consisting of cut glass vases were awarded to the winners. The fortunate were Mrs. James Madison Kennedy of Fort Shafter and Mrs. Arthur Marx of the U. S. Marine Corps. Mrs. Burnham, wife of the commander of Fort Shafter, won the heart prize, a violet bowl of imported German crystal. Miss Onie Kennedy was presented with the guest prize, a beautiful pair of silk hose. This bridge luncheon will be remembered on the social calendar as being one of the most exquisite affairs of the season. Mrs. Alpa Conger Baldwin's guests were: Mrs. Burnham, Mrs. Chapman, Mrs. James Madison Kennedy, Miss Onie Kennedy, Mrs. Pardee, Mrs. Smith of Fort Shafter, Mrs. Johnstone, Mrs. Arthur Marx, Mrs. Putnam, Mrs. William Melanthy, Mrs. Wallace, Miss Katherine Kennedy and Miss Estelle Wallace.

Kitchen Shower. During the week preceding their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Barnes were tendered a kitchen shower by Mr. and Mrs. Woodford at their home on Anapuni street. Each one of the guests brought in appropriate gifts for the fair young bride-to-be that could be utilized in the kitchen of the artistic new bungalow when the young couple went to housekeeping. The presents consisted of sauce pans of every description, frying pans, bread and meat boards, a rollingpin, potato masher, coffee and tea pots, cake cutters, wooden and tin spoons and forks, bread and cake boxes, in fact every conceivable article that is necessary for use in the kitchen. Each gift had a linerick attached that was read, and was the means of promoting great merriment. The kitchen shower came as a complete surprise to the guests of honor, for they had been invited to a bridge party. During the evening this absorbing game was indulged in. After the counting of the scores dainty prizes were awarded. Miss Sheffield was the recipient of the Leon Case, Mr. Jamison, and others, brass designed to hold a potted plant. The gentleman's prize was a silver pencil in filigree work and was won by Mr. Schmutzler of Oahu College. Later in the evening a delicious supper was served. Those numbered amongst the guests were Miss Sheffield, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Andrews, Miss Blair, Miss Louise Lucas, Miss Edith Arthur, Miss Quinan, Miss Della Stone, Mr. Kenneth Barnes, Mr. Schmutzler, Mr. Leon Case, Mr. Jamison, Dr. Leonard Case, and others.

Celebrated Writer to Visit Honolulu.

Mrs. Fannie C. Macauley of Louisville, Kentucky, the celebrated writer who wrote "The Lady of the Decoration" under the nom de plume of Frances Little, is expected to arrive in Honolulu on Tuesday by the Tenyo Maru. Mrs. Macauley is accompanied by Miss Suttle of Louisville and Miss Smith of Mississippi. The trio will visit Japan, China and Korea. In the autumn the two latter women will proceed on their trip around the world. Mrs. Macauley will return to Japan, where the winter will be spent. It is to be regretted that only one day will be spent in Honolulu on their way to the Orient. Mrs. Macauley is an old friend of Mr. and Mrs. L. Tenney Peck, who visited last year at her beautiful home in Louisville, Ky., where they were royally entertained. Mr. and Mrs. Peck will meet this party of distinguished travelers at the wharf, and the day will be devoted to motoring and sight-seeing. Mrs. Macauley is a first cousin of Alice Hegan Rice, the authoress of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," "Lovey Mary," and a number of other popular books of fiction. Mr. Cale Young Rice, who was married to Alice Hegan nearly a decade ago, is a rising young dramatic poet with the promise of a great future before him. The Tenney Pecks were guests of theirs during their sojourn in Louisville, Ky. It is to be hoped that Mrs. Fannie Macauley will become so enamored with the beauties and charm of "Hawaii Nei" that she will decide to make a lengthy visit in the islands on her return from the Orient.

Mrs. Matthew Graham's Dinner.

Last Saturday evening a pretty dinner party was given by Mrs. Matthew Graham in honor of Miss Sheffield, who on the following Tuesday became the bride of Mr. Kenneth Barnes. Only the fair sex were hidden to the affair. Dinner was served at seven o'clock. In the center of the beautiful table was placed a large bride's cake, around the base was banked quantities of lavender asters and bowknots of tulle. The cake contained a ring, thimble and penny. During dessert the cake was cut; Miss Della Stone got the ring, indicating that she would be a bride before the end of the year; Miss Blair found the money, which is an omen that she will possess untold wealth. As the timble is a sign of spinsterhood it would not be fair to state who found that emblem in their piece of cake. On account of these trophies much mirth was occasioned. Among those present were Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Andrews, Miss Sheffield, Miss Blair, Miss Louise Lucas, Miss Katherine Woodford, Miss Edith Arthur, Miss Margaret Quinan, Mrs. Haney and Miss Della Stone.

Captain and Mrs. Marx's Dinner.

A number of dinners were given Thursday evening, prior to the coronation ball. One of the most pleasant affairs was the dinner given at the home of Captain and Mrs. Arthur Marx of the U. S. Marine Corps. Hand-painted place cards found at each one of the dozen covers were greatly admired. The table decorations were in tones of yellow. Golden

SOCIETY WOMAN IN SNAKE GOWN

NEW YORK, June 16.—The so-called "snake gown" worn by Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, the popular young society matron, has created a sensation in New York's ultra fashionable circles, in which Mrs. Burden moves. Mrs. Burden was snapped by a photographer while wearing this gown at the international polo matches at Westbury, N. Y. The photo is reproduced herewith. The general effect of the gown and trimmings is to give a suggestion of snakes. The front of the gown is of heavy white lace, and down the sides and back bands and spangles are arranged to give the impression of scales.

corymbia was the flower chosen for the decorative scheme. After an enjoyable repast the party motored to the Moana Hotel, where they participated in the dancing until the " wee small hours." Those seated around the pretty dinner table were Captain and Mrs. Arthur Marx, Mrs. Elliott, wife of Captain Elliott of the U. S. Navy, Miss Edith Cowles, Miss Bonham, Miss Katherine Stephens, Miss Helen Hough, Captain Arthur Marx, Mr. Percy Coghern, Lieut. D. Rodney, Lieut. Burrell, Lieut. Guyler, and Dr. Tucker Smith of the U. S. Navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews' Dinner.

Wednesday of last week Mr. and Mrs. Andrews were host and hostess at a pre-nuptial dinner that was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Barnes, nee Sheffield. Brides' roses were used in profusion on the daintily appointed table that was arranged to seat eight. A cut glass vase was filled with roses and was placed in the center of the table. Trailers of smilax intermingled with roses were arranged in a conventional design on the damask cloth. The place cards were ornamented with the hosts' monogram in gold. After dinner Mr. and Mrs. Andrews and their guests played bridge. Among those who participated in this delightful affair were Mr. and Mrs. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Graham, Miss Woodford and Miss Stone.

Miss Ballentine's Luncheon.

Pink roses and violets will be used profusely at the luncheon when Miss Irma Ballentine will entertain in honor of Miss Louise Girard. The favors and place cards will be in mauve and pink. Eight covers will encircle the artistically arranged table.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Campbell's Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Campbell gave a delightful dinner party this week at the Hotel Colonial, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gay of Kaula. A profusion of violets were used as a decoration, and it is needless to state that a delicious dinner was served.

Coronation Ball.

One of the brilliant social functions of the week was the Coronation Ball, given Thursday night at the Moana Hotel. Nearly a thousand guests were present.

Mrs. James Hough's Tea.

From 4 to 6 Mrs. James Hough will entertain at tea at the Seaside Hotel on Tuesday afternoon. A large number of Honolulu society folk have been invited as well as Army and Navy folk.
